Cover: A delegation of Seneca County Republicans calls upon Warren G. Harding during Harding's 1920 "Front Porch Campaign" for the presidency in 1920. Harding's decision to remain in Marion forced his opponent, James Cox, to embrace an innovative campaign tactic: visiting voters personally in every state of the union. See Joseph D. Faykosh, "Away from the Front Porch: James Cox and the 1920 Presidential Campaign Tour." Center for Archival Collections, Jerome Library, Bowling Green State University.
